CASE STUDY:

Case Presentation

A five-year-old neutered male cat, Jerry was presented for euthanasia due to severe skin trauma from over-grooming for an unknown length of time (see photo of dorsal neck upon presentation). He was surrendered to the hospital where he was kept inside the clinic. His case was medically managed with daily wound cleaning and medications, but Jerry showed very little improvement.

Course of Treatment

Jerry was started on Royal Canin® Feline ULTAMINO dry cat food. The result of years of extensive research, ULTAMINO is specially formulated for adult cats with severe adverse food reactions. Also suitable for long-term support for skin and gastrointestinal issues, ULTAMINO has proven to be life-changing for cats like Jerry:

- ULTAMINO is Royal Canin's gold standard for dietary elimination trials, with strict manufacturing procedures to help avoid cross contamination.
- The clinically tested and highly palatable formula contains hydrolyzed protein including oligopeptides and amino acids resulting in a highly digestible diet with a reduced risk of triggering an immune response.
- Optimal levels of B vitamins and the inclusion of precise amino acids help to reinforce the cat's skin barrier.
- Omega-3 fatty acids EPA and DHA help promote a healthy skin and coat.
- Formulated using Relative Supersaturation (RSS) methodology, ULTAMINO helps reduce the risk of pure struvite and calcium oxalate crystals and stone formation in the bladder.
- This diet also contains an exclusive blend of fibers to help support healthy digestion in cats prone to digestive upset, including vomiting and diarrhea.

Outcome of Treatment

“Jerry responded exceptionally to the diet with complete resolution to his skin lesions, and most of his fur grew back. The diet was palatable and well tolerated. The wounds started looking better every day and within a couple of weeks no additional wound management was required. By the end of the first bag Jerry was completely healed and his hair on his lower back returned to normal. Unfortunately, due to the long-term trauma, we anticipate the hair around the original wound site will never regrow.”
